New businesses bring cheer

Simon Tiefenback gets ready to celebrate the opening of Simon's Bistro and Biergarten this month.

BUSINESS CONFIDENCE has soared in the valley with a spate of new businesses opening in the area this year. Empty shops have disappeared from the Gardens shopping area and new businesses have popped up along North Rd. Turn to page 2 to read about the community buzz in the valley and to page 4 to read about the new biergarten. Show your support for local business and help the valley continue to grow as the best place to live in Dunedin.

Valley community works together to bring joy

North East Valley Normal School pupil Immanuel Mombi enjoys riding his new bike made for him by members of the Valley Community Workspace.

WATCHING OTHER children ride their bikes and scooters around the school grounds is tough for a child who would desperately love to join in but can't.

North East Valley Normal School pupil Immanuel Mombi has cerebral palsy and teacher aide Kirsten Kane was so moved by the look of longing on his face as he watched other children, she knew she had to do something.

She approached Peter McDonald who spends time at the school every Friday helping children repair their bikes. Peter together with Steve Ward built Immanuel a specialised bike at the Valley Community Workspace.

'Buzz in the valley' says board member

THE VALLEY Project's annual general meeting at the end of this month is a chance to celebrate another fantastic year of community-led development in our valley.

Community members can hear the stories of success and see the plans for next year. It is also an opportunity to honour the work of many volunteers, board members and Valley Project staff.

This is a chance to have your say on where to next and to decide who will give leadership and governance at the Valley Project.

We are in a time of transition at the project as the Department of Internal Affairs funding want to get involved in the oncomes to an end. We will need to look to other funding options and cut our cloth accordingly.

There is, however, enormous opportunity ahead of us, as the richest resource in our community is the people.

The Valley Project's greatest success has been in mobilising, inspiring and building confidence in our people.

There is a buzz in the valley that extends across the city.

We have momentum. People like what is happening. People going success. The Valley Project is making a difference in the community and in the lives of our citizens.

Please come and celebrate with us, and if you haven't done so already, see how you can make a contribution to our collective progress.

—Steve O'Connor (Valley Project executive board member)

Matariki Hunga Nui a community effort

MANY DIFFERENT community organisations have come together to support Matariki Hunga Nui. Volunteers and Valley Project staff have been working hard behind the scenes to organise the event, which includes entertainment and activities for children and will culminate with a hangi for more than 250 people.

This year All Saints Fruit and Veges, who help people in Dunedin have access to healthy fruit and vegetables using the collective power of the community, has ordered all the vegetables at wholesale prices for the hāngī. The Salvation Army and the Valley Baptist Church are lending crockery, cutlery and tables to add to the Valley Project's own collection, and Dunedin North Intermediate school is providing the venue. Valley Project community coordinator Anna Parker says the event is shaping up to be an "awesome community collaboration". "This celebration is a real community effort and we look forward to seeing everybody there." Helpers are needed to chop vegetables on Friday 10 June from 4pm. "Vegetable chopping is always a lot of fun. Just come along to the kitchen in the technology suite at DNI and Matariki volunteer Talia Wharerimu, who is a member of the organising committee, counts and sorts crockery and cutlery for the hangī.

join us."

People are also needed to help clear up afterwards, especially those who are not coming with small children. All helpers will be warmly welcomed.

Entertainment and activities include school kapa haka groups, the Dunedin Fiddle Club, the Sounds Nor-Easterly Choir, story-telling, giant bubbles, art projects in the art room and t-shirt printing. "Even if you haven't got tickets for the hangi come and join the fun. You can still go on the waiting list for a ticket as they have all been given out."—Edith Leigh

Lottery grant gratefully received for paper costs

THE VALLEY Project has received a $4000 Lottery grant which will be used to buy the paper the Valley Voice is printed on each month.

Valley Voice editor Edith Leigh says each print run of the Valley Voice uses more than 10, 000 sheets of A3 paper, so paper is a significant cost in the production of the newsletter.

"We are very grateful to the Lottery committee for this grant. Advertising revenue covers some of the cost in producing this free community newsletter, but most of the costs are met by the Valley Project." Businesses interested in advertising in the Valley Voice should contact Edith on 473 8614 or email voice@northeastvalley.org for more information.

Dance off that winter chill

A FESTIVAL to showcase Dunedin's 'swing riot' vintage-style dancing will hit North East Valley with dance workshops to be held locally.

Events coordinator Simon Christie says the festival will be an opportunity for people to experience something fun, social and inspiring. "Swing dancing is incredibly fun, both to watch and take part in, especially with live swing jazz music being performed, as will often be the case during the festival."

The festival includes a stylish winterthemed ball with a free 'absolute bebe bringing a little bit of Europe to the valley when he opens his bistro and biergarten on North Rd this month.

The new hospitality venue will be modelled on German-style biergartens which are places to meet and socialise often outdoors in a garden-style area. "It is very, very exciting. I like the valley a lot and I think it's a great community here."

Simon, who also owns Deep Creek Deli, says he always loved the building at ?? North Rd and thought what a great hospitality venue it would make every time he drove past it. He has done extensive renovations to create a covered outdoor area, an enclosed and heated 'outdoor' area, a dining area and a 'stammtisch' area, which is traditionally a place for locals to meet around large tables and catch up with friends, gossip and meet others.

"We want to inspire people to go out and socialise and treat themselves," says Simon. "The idea is to make everyone feel welcome and as if they are at home in a cosy atmosphere."

The bistro and biergarten will be open from 7am till late, seven days a week. 'Biergarten' does not simply mean a place to drink beer, says Simon. It is also a place to have coffee, breakfast, lunch and dinner. The layout is designed to make it welcoming to everybody, from

SIMON TIEFENBACK will families, to friends meeting for lunch, to colleagues socialising after work.

> The focus will be on freshly prepared food that is tasty and filling, not fancy, he says.

"We are really excited about opening. We have had a lot of people passing by and asking 'when do you open'?" The planned opening date for the biergarten is Saturday 4 June.

Miniature houses evoke memories

I HAVE been a maker of objects for as long as I can remember. In 2011 after years of creating, exhibiting and being involved in both commercial galleries and community projects, I completed a Bachelor of Visual Art at Dunedin School of Art.

The house form developed out of my degree work and I have been expanding on these ideas and engaging in dialogue around house and home.

These house forms are hand rendered from red brick clay. The chosen methods and materials are symbols of the domestic.

The miniature size and serial nature of their display speaks of homely collectibles, but the glaze techniques and deliberate flaws suggest things not so comforting.

I want the material choice and size of the Interest for regular local market gauged

REGULAR STALLHOLDER Andrew Mclaclan is keen to connect with people who would be interested in supporting a regular local community market in the valley area.

Regular successful markets are held in other areas of the city such as Caversham, South Dunedin and Roslyn, and it would be great to see one in North East Valley or Pine Hill, says Andrew.

Lindsay Creek flood re-visited

A YEAR ago on 3 June I watched the rain making rivers through the bark chips in the Opoho Playcentre playground and thought, 'I don't remember the forecast being for this much rain!'

In fact, the initial weather warnings had forecast about half the amount of rain that we ended up getting.

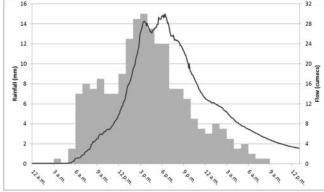

Last June's flood was caused by a lowpressure system off the Canterbury coast that pushed a wet south-easterly onto Otago. Rainfall from these easterly storms is notoriously difficult to predict.

These systems are more localised than larger nor-westerly storms and determining exactly where they will come ashore is tricky. Also, the rain is coming from out at sea, where there are no rain gauges or weather radar to give us a better idea of what is coming.

Unfortunately for us, Dunedin copped it on this occasion. The 24-hour rainfall at Otago Regional Council's (ORC) Pine Hill rain gauge was 180mm. That's about our normal rainfall for May and June combined, falling in one day. This was the highest 24-hour rainfall recorded there since the gauge was installed in 1979. Pukehaukea/Lindsay Creek's catchment is small and steep, so the creek responds very quickly to rain. It rises rapidly when heavy rain falls and drops almost as fast when it stops. This very short "lag time" can be seen in the graph above, where the flow in the creek (the line) closely corresponds to the hourly rainfall (the bars). The highest flow – just over 30 cubic m/sec – was recorded at 6.25pm at the North Rd bridge. That's 15,000 2-litre ice cream containers of water rushing down the valley every second.

This was the second highest flow recorded in

The line on this graph depicts Pukehaukea/Lindsay Creek flow, while the bars show hourly rainfall

Lindsay Creek since records began in 1979. Thirty-six years' worth of data isn't very long to do reliable number crunching with, but the number crunchers worked out that statistically a flood this size has a return period of around 22 years. In normal person speak, you can expect this sort of flow a few times in a lifetime. While we love our creek, last year's flood reminded us that living with a creek is not all beer, skittles and Creekfests; sometimes it's going to pop its banks. Its short response time makes giving accurate warnings difficult, so it's handy to be aware of our environment, look out for your neighbours and make sure you know where important things in your house are if you need to get out quickly.

You can find out more about the rainfall, river flows and impacts of the June 2015 flood in the ORC report Coastal Otago flood event: 3 June 2015.—Helen Jack

AGE: 12 year old male

BREED: Cameo & white short-haired cat PERSONALITY: friendly & laid-back

LOVES: sleeping

Roger is an older cat that would just love a warm and comfortable retirement home to spend his golden years. He is loyal and loving so he must have been somebody's pet in the past, but like so many SPCA animals he has strayed and found himself homeless.

Roger was picked up in South Dunedin with no sign of an owner to care for him, so he came to the animal centre in Opoho, where he seems to enjoy life sitting out on the cattery veranda.

We would love for Roger to go to a permanent home and sit on his very own sunny porch – do you have one to offer him?

Apache

AGE: 5 year old female

BREED: black & white Staffordshire-Terrier cross

PERSONALITY: a little shy but very loving

LOVES: exercise

Apache is a lovely young dog who has a happy nature and is very well behaved.

She adores men particularly and enjoys physical and energetic playtime with them.

She has not had a lot to do with other dogs in the past and is learning to socialise well with them now, but would probably appreciate living in a single-dog home.

Apache will thrive with a lot of love and attention, including long walks and ball chasing at the park.

Please come and meet her at the animal centre today.

Cosy Homes here to help this winter

WINTER IS here and many valley households will be already feeling the cold and damp creeping into their homes. Never fear, the Valley Project Cosy Homes initiative is here to help keep our residents warm and dry.

The Cosy Homes project was started in 2014 with the goal of helping to make homes in the valley healthier, warmer and drier. Many of the houses on the flat of the valley get very little sun in autumn and winter. When households register with the Cosy Homes project, a 'flash mob' can help with retrofits such as temporary window film, draught stoppers and thermal-backed curtains. A 'flash mob' is a group of volunteers and a qualified home performance assessor. The assessor will also give a detailed energy efficiency report to the household.

All households are welcome to register, but priority is given to homes with elderly residents, families with children or health issues, and community services cardholders.

Participants in our programme say their homes feel warmer and drier, with the most difference visible in the dramatic reduction of condensation and moisture in the house.

People have said it has improved their health and overall quality of life. One mother commented that her children used to prefer to be outside in the winter as it was mostly warmer than in their house. They are now happy their house is warm.

The first Cosy Homes 'flash mob' pictured in 2014 after helping to make a valley home warmer, healthier and drier.

With winter here again we're keen to let people know about our services and help to build energy literacy in our community. We would also love more volunteer help so we can reach more homes.

We don't want anyone left out in the cold this winter. If you would like to help out with making valley homes cosy, or you want to find out how to make your own home cosier, come along to our upcoming information session on Sunday 12 June, at 3pm in the community

Still plenty to do and harvest at the valley community garden

VEGETABLES MAY be getting expensive in the shops but there is still plenty to harvest at the North East Valley Community Garden.

Come along to one of our Saturday morning or Sunday afternoon working bees and take home some vegetables to make the house-keeping go further. There's still plenty to do. We're clearing out old crops and even in Dunedin there are seeds to be sown and seedlings to plant out at this time of year.

We are building up garden beds with compost and weeds are still growing really well. We have a variety of tasks ranging from gentle weeding to barrowing wheelbarrows full of compost to the garden beds.

Usual things to find on the produce table will be a selection from leeks, carrots, parsnips, broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, silverbeet and green peppers, and other things from time to time including cape gooseberries and raspberries.

Kiwiana brightens up the valley

Artist Andy McCready at the Kiwiana themed Chorus cabinet she painted on North Rd, near the Normanby Tavern and Bistro. This was included in the third round of public artworks on cabinets that Chorus has commissioned across Dunedin.

Pine Hill Community Gardens opened

Dunedin City councillor Jinty McTavish and Dunedin mayor Dave Cull dig in the first plants at the Pine Hill Community Garden.

THE PINE Hill Community Gardens were officially opened with a ceremony on-site last month.

Upoko David Ellison blessed the gardens and Pine Hill community members and North East Valley Community Garden supporters joined together for a shared afternoon tea.

Cuddle up for Winter workshop

Do you want a warm, dry, healthy home? Come and get the top tips to make your home cosy this winter at the Valley Project's 'Cuddle up for Winter' workshop.

The topics we will be covering will include thermal curtains, insulation and ventilation. Tammy Prescott from the Dunedin Curtain Bank will be talking about what the curtain bank does, the best way to hang curtains and other handy tips for curtain insulation.

A home performance assessor will be giving her top ideas to keep a home warm and dry.

The workshop will be on Sunday 12 June, 3pm—4pm, at the community rooms, 262 North Rd. For more information contact Valley Project community coordinator Charlotte Wilson on 473 8614 or email charlotte@northeastvalley.org
