LOG-SPLITTER DONATED FOR BACK-SAVING FUNDRAISING

The North Dunedin Shed Society has been progressively clearing willows off the banks of the Lindsay Creek near its premises in Normanby as part of its ongoing riparian restoration project. With the annual help of students from Arana College, they have been planting native trees and shrubs along the riverbanks as supplied by the Valley Project. In the course of this work, considerable amounts of firewood have been generated. Some of this is sold to the public to raise funds and some is donated to families in the area through the Valley Project. The growing quantity of wood overwhelmed the Shed's tiny electric log splitter.

In the course of a conversation between Rotarian and North Dunedin Shed Society Treasurer, Chris Bloore, and Rotary District 9980 Assistant District Governor, Ah-Lek Tay, it emerged that the District had some unspent funds looking for a good cause. The Shed Society could make good use of a heavy-duty log splitter. It was a case of two-plus-two making 42 - the capacity in tons of a top-of-the-line petroldriven log splitter. Three Dunedin Rotary clubs; Dunedin, Dunedin Central, and Dunedin South, chipped in. Their contribution was topped up by Rotary District 9980 to pay $3,600 towards the $4,000 cost of the machine supplied by Topmaq. Their Dunedin branch generously absorbed the freight cost from their Christchurch warehouse. An anonymous donor supplied the 65 litres of hydraulic oil used in driving the ram that pushes log rounds against a fixed splitting wedge. (Continued on page #10...)

FOOD SCRAPS & COMPOST

The DCC revised waste system that includes collection of food scraps is still at least a year out (info about the changes can be found at https://bit.ly/3QKXV9J). In the meantime, if you want to reduce your carbon footprint by diverting food scraps from landfill but don't have a system at your whare, then look no further:

https://www.sharewaste.org.nz/

Sharewaste connects people who wish to recycle their food scraps and other organics with locals who are already composting, wormfarming, or keeping farm animals. It's a great opportunity to get to know your neighbours, too! A few "hosts" already exist here in the Valley. Join Sharewaste for free and get connected.

Alternatively, if you want to learn more about the art of compost making, head to your local Community Garden working bee, talk to their experts and muck in.

Did you read Valley Kai material that sparked your interest but now can't find it? Information on lots of Valley Kai knowledge is available on our website. ### VEGAN HOT POTS - MATARIKI CELEBRATION SOUP

Not all iwi commemorate Matariki at the same time; some start on the first full moon after the star cluster rises, or on the next new moon. It's not too late to celebrate! Try this stellar soup recipe crafted by local food inspiration page, Many Hands Kitchen. This original recipe includes a peculiar ingredient of peanut butter that makes it out of this world! # AN ODE TO NEIGHBOURLY GENEROSITY street, I realise what strong relationships have been built with neighbours often centred around food!

I treasure the 'old school' relationship we hold on one side. They are our go-to neighbours if we are short an egg, or a cup of flour. They have saved me many times! I try to repay them with some fruit or a jar of chutney, and then something else generous comes across the fence! They even save their treatful leftovers for our chooks! With many neighbours we share the love of growing food in our backyards, and many vege seedling punnets get swapped and shared.

As I reflect on almost ten years on our little Needless to say, excess fruit and vege also get shared, even if they don't look perfect. One neighbour is much more organised than me, and often shares their early sprouted tomato seedlings for the glasshouse, which reward us greatly over the summer season. But over these last hard, few years with unusual lockdowns and such restrictions, other neighbours have surprised us with their generosity. One lockdown week, a bag of coffee beans turned up (roasted in a garage on our street and unused at our neighbours cafe). How that perked us up! Another gift closer to Christmas was a pottle of delicious honey, made by busy bees who also reside on our street. Yet another neighbouring whanau at the end of our street offers excess bounty from up north, once being a bag of coveted feijoas and lemons!

When I step back and reflect it makes me realise what a little but generous street we have! It's interesting how we have gotten to know so many different neighbours through sharing kai. So I just wanted to give a shout-out to thoughtful neighbours and put a huge thank-you out there to those that share when they can and those that help look after those around them. What a lovely, generous NEV community we have. -- Anonymous

SUPERB HERB PROPAGATION

We had a fantastic turnout despite frigid temperatures on the day. It was lovely to be able to engage with community members as a group once again, especially one intent on getting their hands soiled! Everyone left with loads of herbs freshly potted on the spot - curry plant, rosemary, thyme, sage, lavender, mint, bay tree, and even New Zealand cranberry was propagated. Using only the cuttings from the gardens of workshop organisers Anna Read and KJ Davie, at least a dozen more gardens can now be grown. And may they, too, one day provide for more!

LINDSAY CREEK STORIES WANTED

Do you have a special story involving Lindsay Creek that could be shared with us? Earlier this year, we brought the community together to gain insight into the past amazing mahi that has occurred around the Lindsay Creek catchment, how and why Lindsay Creek is important to us, and ways in which we move forward from here.

We have secured Participatory Science Platform (PSP) funding to be able to carry out a project based on the discussion had at the consultation evening held back in February. Be on the lookout for a get-together later this year to learn more about this project which comes with the opportunity to present your stories about and photos of Lindsay Creek. We will promote the date of this event in the next issue of the Valley Voice.

If you have any historical stories or photographs that you're really keen to share with the community and to have presented at this proposed event, please send them to openvue@northeastvalley.org. Otherwise, hang onto them until the day of the event. We look forward to what you share! -- Clare Cross

BIRD ID WORKSHOP WELL ATTENDED

A huge thank you to Mary Thompson from Birds New Zealand for delivering the Garden Bird Identification workshop last month. Throughout the workshop we learnt that different birds have specific 'bling' (unique physical characteristics) and behaviours that can help us tell them apart from one another. We were particularly delighted that just as we were nearing the end of the workshop, one of the participants spotted a couple of Eastern rosellas out the window of the Fred Hollows Room! It was so great to be able to connect with everyone in the community with a focus on NZ Garden Birds. If you are keen for us to run the workshop again or something similar, please let us know by emailing openvue@northeastvalley.org.

HABITAT RESTORATION UPDATE

We have been working towards our habitat restoration in Chingford Park with more planting and weeding, and surveying of smaller plants. Some of the species we found included a variety of ferns, coprosmas, bush flax, New Zealand Jasmine, ivy, sycamore, oak, and holly. This was only within a very small part of Chingford Park.

KIDS CORNER Write a nature poem

Can you write a poem all about the nature around you?

What to do: Go into your backyard or local park, and as quiet as you can, listen to all of the sounds you can hear. Write these down. What do you think is making those sounds? If it's too cold, look out your window and write about anything you see. What sounds do you think the things you see are making? Can you make the noises of the things you see?

Here's my poem: The wind is rustling the leaves in the trees. A bird is singing tweet, tweet, tweet. The frost is crunching under my feet. Someone is playing by the creek. Photo by Jess Corbett

CONSIDER MORE 'FUNGI FORAY' AND LESS 'FUNGI FORAGE'

The topic of foraging is becoming an interesting thing lately. Mostly in the sense that it's becoming increasingly 'trendified', popularised, and commodified.

With this popularisation brings a range of ethical, ecological, cultural and legal questions and considerations. While foraging is marketed as a 'sustainable' way to get food, it's important to remember that foraging was a sustainable way of human life back when the population of humans on earth was well under one billion with very low population densities spread across large areas of healthy ecosystems, and the foraging was done by people who live literally within their environment and with intergenerational wisdom about ecology being an intrinsic part of their knowledge base. Now, the world population is eight billion. We live in densely populated areas and we are guite embedded in a culture of globalised extraction which is quite literally destroying the planet.

Many in the worldwide mushroom community are becoming increasingly concerned with this recent foraging craze in regards to conservation of fungi in urban and peri-urban ecosystems. There's plenty of examples from overseas parks, reserves, bush areas, etc. near populated places (i.e. Asia, Europe, the UK, and North America) where many species of fungi have been driven to extinction or near extinction in those areas due to rampant overharvesting. This is mirrored with other 'foragable' things like shellfish, fish, plants, seaweeds, and some animals in various locations around the world.

One local example of this is Chingford Park. There's a species of mushroom called 'Artists Conk' (Ganoderma species) which are a type of medicinal mushroom. They're a woody, bracket-type fungi and the ones seen around the park will commonly be five or more years old. Some are known to be over ten years of age! Local enthusiasts enjoy seeing them grow over the years. Their presence is used by ecologists as a sign of a healthy ecosystem. About a year ago all of the Ganoderma disappeared. Someone had come through and in one fell swoop, stripped the entire park of these mushrooms. They are yet to start growing back.

There seems to be a huge amount of people now, all over the country, who are literally picking every single edible mushroom that they can find. Some people get really crazy about it, basically gridsearching parks and reserves day in, day out, foraging mushrooms (and in some cases selling them on the 'grey market' as a profit-making exercise).

We need to also consider the legalities of such harvesting. Areas like Bethunes Gully, Woodhaugh, and other native bush areas around Dunedin are, in essence, nature reserves. They can be thought of as conservation areas which help to foster urban biodiversity. It's actually illegal to remove biological material from these areas whether plants,

Brown Birch-Bolete (Leccinum scabrum)

Velvet Foot (Flammulina velutipes) birds, lizards, fungi, etc. This is something which is conveniently ignored by most people who are promoting foraging. At the end of the day, fungi are a crucial part of ecosystems and if everyone starts pulling them out, it's going to have an impact. Imagine trapping a couple of kereru to eat for dinner because they're quite abundant, and were eaten as a sustainable food source by Maori right in this very area in pre-European times, and apparently they taste pretty good! But we don't consume kereru because we value them for their own inherent values and the role that they play in a healthy ecosystem.

On one hand it's great that people take an interest in nature. On the other hand, it's a real bummer when walking in the bush and seeing signs of ravaged mushrooms, whether ripped out, completely taken away, or tossed on the ground like rubbish instead of remaining in their natural state for others to enjoy. Perhaps the only exception to mushroom foraging is in environments which are already highly modified and on private land, such as field mushrooms from farm paddocks or other kinds of mushrooms from pine plantations.

For most other mushrooms, and especially those in native habitats, small samples (as in one or two singular specimens) are acceptable for research purposes. People who study fungi and other organisms obtain permits from land owners and local iwi to carry out their work. Typically, the samples are studied to learn more about fungi in general, and to survey fungal diversity of certain areas for record keeping and conservation purposes. Some species are taken to the lab for cultures so that they can be cultivated. In this way the enjoyment of eating fungi can be enabled without having to harvest from the wild.

Purchase your own affordable mushroom growkits from a plethora of certified fungi farms throughout New Zealand such as SporeShift, Oak and Spore, Mushrooms by the Sea, or Dunedin's own MycoLogic. In the case of MycoLogic, the money generated from selling mushroom growing cultures for home cultivation funds ongoing research into native fungi.

> Many people get heaps of enjoyment from learning about and photographing fungi without necessarily harvesting them all, in the same way that its fun to learn about plants and look out for native birds or insects. -- Anonymous

IT'S ALL GO AT SALVO!

The Salvation Army Family Store has been operating from its reinstated North Road residence for over a month now! Have you been yet? Isn't it the tidiest op-shop you've ever seen!? Were you deceived by the entrance, too? There's a good reason why it's a few doors down the way...

The store has been set up with its storage at the front of the building and shop at the back due to the historical significance of the church attached. Its interior is adorned with beautiful rimu walls whose preservation is preferred. Shelves can't be installed in that part of the building (the church), therefore making it impossible to house the shop there. It's much smaller than the back room anyway.

There are actually two entrances to the shop, one on the Northfacing side of the building and one at the very back beside an inviting patio. Signage is planned to better direct customers to the shop's entrances, but being a charity, funds must be found first. There are also two sets of car parks, some at the front and a few at the very back of the property. Donations are accepted at the front/streetside of the building during operating hours.

It's a brand new team in this location, under the management of the wonderful Michelle, and they're reportedly having a ball! Opening day was told to be amazing and made so much better by the welcome received from the community.

Salvation Army is always looking for volunteers to help the team, so if anyone out there wants to offer their time and diligence, to have fun and feel good about their day, get in touch!

FOSTER HOPE OTAGO IN NEED

There are over 5,000 children in foster care in New Zealand. Are you aware that many of these children arrive at their new placements with nothing but the clothes on their backs, or with their belongings in a rubbish sack? No child should be made to feel like their belongings are "rubbish" and caregivers should be able to focus on the emotional needs when a child arrives, rather than having to run around doing last-minute shopping. Let's change this!

through providing children with necessities to ease their way and symbolise support for them and their carers. We make up backpacks to be given to children when they are removed from their homes, and 'flat packs' for young adults aging out of foster care.

Each year we rely on donations from the public to help us make as many packs as possible. Can you help? Donations can be in the form of automatic weekly/monthly monetary subscriptions or as online purchases directly from our supply list. You can also donate physical items so long as they are new/unopened. We are always in need of toiletries (dental hygiene, deodorant, bathing product, etc.), books, soft toys, pyjamas, socks, underwear, nappies, sanitary products, towels, blankets, bedding, and flatting goods (cooking utensils, cleaning supplies, tea towels, etc.). See the pinned post on our Facebook page for the various drop-off points.

AURORA TAMARIKI IN THE WINTERTIA

Do vou know about the little early childhood centre up on the hill? Aurora Tamariki in Pine Hill is a small, Waldorf and Pikler-inspired centre; a home away from home for some of the Valley's youngest residents.

It's July and winter at Aurora is: a woodfire in the main play space; warm and nutritious kai such as soup and porridge for lunch (prepared with help from the tamariki); woollen clothes and wet weather gear so tamariki can freely explore the trees and garden outside, even on wet days.

As children arrive in the morning, each is greeted with a song for the season. In June, the song was 'Ngā Tamariki o Matariki', a waiata introducing each of the stars of Matariki.

Whānau connections are essential to the Aurora philosophy. All families were invited to the centre in late June to brighten the late afternoon darkness with lanterns made by the tamariki and hot drinks for the adults.

If this sounds like a centre that might suit your whanau and little ones, Adrienne and Alison would love to hear from you. The centre is small, but children grow and spaces become available. You can learn more at www.auroratamariki.co.nz or email info@auroratamariki.co.nz

NORTH EAST VALLEY NAMED NEW NATIONAL SWEET SPOT!

Stuff news media website has chosen North East Valley as its lower South Island Sweet Spot winner this year! Using all the data Stuff could get their hands on—weather, housing, social and economic stats, public transport, amenities, and more—they determined we are "the most liveable place in the region"! We Valley-ites know well our community truly is an extraordinary one. We are honoured by this recognition!

Local Stuff reporter, Sinead Gill, announced the win early last month in an article titled The Dunedin suburb where you can convert your car into an EV - and play very competitive mini-golf. She begins, "A ten minute drive north of Dunedin city centre is a community so strong that together its members have restored their environment, made their homes and tamariki healthier, and are tackling climate change with one of the few electric vehicle conversion businesses in the country."

Read the full article at https://bit.ly/SweetSpotNEV. It touches on the Valley Project and its ongoing Healthy Homes initiative, activity at the Community Workspace on Allen Street, North East Valley's concentration of local eateries and shops, current real estate and rental figures for our area, and stories of lockdown survival.

You're sure to recognise some of the community members mentioned, such as James Hardisty of EV-lution and his electric car conversions. Steve Ward, a.k.a. 'Captain Bikeheart', gets a shout-out for his bicycle expertise. Christopher Wilson shares a story of his faithful Blacks Road Grocer customers. Joyce Lepper highlights the community gardens and the birth of a backyard petanque club.

Of the Sweet Spot selection process, Stuff reporter Kate Newton informs, "This year, we've also scored suburbs on good access to essential services and proximity and choice of schools—the things which make a suburb more liveable and reasonable rent, recognising that homeownership is increasingly out of reach for many." She confirms financial accessibility and diversity were used to inform overall winners.

Stuff encourages kiwis to entertain their curiosities around potential living spaces. They offer a Sweet Spots interactive tool containing information on ~2000 New Zealand suburbs, towns, and settlements to help Kiwis identify the best places to live according to their unique preferences. Go on, have a try: https://interactives.stuff.co.nz/sweet-spots/. The comprehensive database behind the tool is continually updated with real-time data. You could be matched with Kaitoke, Kaiti, or Tomarata. Maybe Aidanfield will be up for consideration. If you play your preferences right, you may be lead right back to North East Valley or its neighbouring suburbs, assuring you're already in the sweetest spot you could be. -- Krysha Brzuza

The 510kg packing case holding the WONTIDE 42-ton log splitter with log lift was picked up on Saturday, 26 March. The Shed members were like kids on Christmas morning unpacking the machine and starting to assemble it. It was Saturday, 9 April before it was greased and oiled, filled with hydraulic oil and petrol, and started up for the first time. The sheer power of the machine greatly impressed the shed members. The hydraulic log lifter means that large rounds of chainsawed trees can be rolled onto the lifter and raised to the splitting ram without effort.

To date, six cubic metres of free dry firewood have been delivered to deserving families in the Pinehill area through The Valley Project.

The log splitter will be a great asset to the Shed and will provide firewood for donating as well as for sale to raise funds for many years. -- Chris Bloore

AUKAHA - HEALTHY HOMES, HEALTHY WHANAU

Healthy homes, healthy whānau is the goal of the pilot Otago Home Upgrade programme funded by the Energy Efficiency and Conservation Authority through to December 2023. Our team at Aukaha are delivering the programme. We have a passion to improve outcomes for all homeowners in need.

The programme criteria is simple. To be eligible you need:

- 1. To be an Otago resident;
- 2. To own your own home;
- 3. To possess a Community Services Card or have another way to verify low income.

What we do: First we receive your referral and then we conduct a Home Performance Assessment to find out the condition of your home and what needs doing. We then prepare a scope of works, which we can then undertake at no cost to you if you agree to improve your home. The type of work we can do is:

- A. Warmer Kiwi Homes (ceiling and underfloor insulation and clean heat);
- B. Critical repairs, i.e. fix a window, leaky roof, plumbing or drainage problem;
- C. Additional features like curtains, LED light bulbs, cylinder wrap, mechanical extraction fans.

Homes that have already received the Warmer Kiwi Homes interventions are still eligible for this programme as we go above and beyond Warmer Kiwi Homes.

How can you get involved? To find out more or to self-refer, email Keita, our Project Coordinator (keita@aukaha.co.nz) or call directly on 03 474 2771. Alternatively you can ask the Valley

Project to complete a referral form for you and we'll be in touch. The time frame is short – this pilot must be complete by December 2023, so the sooner you get in touch, the easier it is for us to get the work done and you won't miss out.

We want this programme not only to benefit those who receive upgrades but also to help shape the replacement national Warmer Kiwi Homes programme and ensure energy wellbeing throughout the motu. Our mission is help everyone into healthy homes, reduce emissions, and to be socially and environmentally responsible in all we do as we adapt to our changing climate. We want to hear from you!

About Us: We are a kaupapa Māori organization owned by five rūnaka, offering health services, trade training, resource management and planning, business development and cultural services to the wider community. The Otago Home Upgrade programme is part of the Health and Social Services / Mana Takata team.

Our Otago Upgrade Team: Scott Willis (Project Manager) Keita McComb (Project Coordinator) Natasha Tatana (Home Performance Advisor)

CONNOR'S COLUMN: DUNEDIN PUBLIC LIBRARY

The Dunedin Public Library opened on 2nd motoring section on the first floor. There December, 1908. It was built on a £10,000 donation by American business man and library philanthopist, Andrew Carnegie. The library has over 700,000 items including books and magazines.

In 1981 it moved from its original location at 110 Moray Place to its current location at 230 Moray Place, then in 1982 the library started a digital scanning system that revolutionized the way books are issued.

My experience with the library has been great over the years, because there are so many books to choose from, including the are also the popular biographies on the same level, and on the ground floor there's a kid section, which is where my love of books began.

The accessibility to get into the library is good because there are multiple entrances to choose from. The main entrance involves stairs which are hard for me to get up. Instead, I can use the entranceway at the bottom of the stairs, though it's small. The best way for me to enter the library is to use the alleyway by the Metro Cinema because it is openly spaced, and there are no stairs along the way. -- Connor Faasega

Speaking of libraries, did you know that the North East Valley area has 11 Lilliput Libraries!? They're tiny, outdoor book cabinets made for the community, by the community. The idea is to 'take a book - leave a book'.

PROTECT YOUR CULTURE

Renowned 18th Century poet, 'Robbie' Burns, was such a fan of haggis that he composed an eight-stanza poem of appreciation for Scotland's national dish. Address to a Haggis was meant as a clever jest, but 237 years on, rich tradition and formal ceremony evolved around the poem.

Kilts, whisky nips, silver salvers (trays), poems aplenty, and theatrical haggis stabbings with fancy daggers are commonly involved in Haggis ceremonies worldwide. None would be complete without a bagpiper to orchestrate the rituals.

If you sort the haggis and the whisky, Dalmore resident and piping maestro, Bill Swift, will carry out an exquisite address! Bill has over 150 ceremonies under his kilt belt. Having emigrated from Scotland in the 60's, he comes equipped with an authentic Scottish accent - icing on the Dundee cake!

He's also known for throwing in a virtues of his motherland and its direct convincing Aussie accent as part of his links to Dunedin. performance. Had Robbie Burns been convicted of treason for his radical poems of the time, he would have been deported to Australia. Any opportunity to have a dig at Australians is one Bill won't pass up. He admits he likes to have a bit of fun and plays up the comedic quality of Robbie's ode to the revered coarse pâté.

(If you want a good giggle, do a Google on The Wild Hairy Haggis. Bill hints it's the supposed source of Scotland's iconic dish.)

Haggis is a savoury 'pudding' that's traditionally made with mutton, offal (organ meats such as lungs, liver, and kidneys), rolled oats, onions, and spices. The mix is stuffed into sheep stomach and boiled. The best haggis, according to Bill, comes direct from Edinburgh. In the Unites States, its import is illegal due to a ban on sheep lung which typically constitutes 10–15% of the traditional recipe. In Dunedin, it can be found at Leckie's Butchery in St. Clair. You might find a serving or two on the menus of Bracken, Albar, or Hungry Hobos. But it's advised none is tasted without an inaugural Haggis Address!

The highly entertaining ceremony is anywhere between 15 to 25 minutes long and surprisingly affordable. Bill is happy to travel, especially because he knows he's one of the few that can do what he does with full Scottish flavour! He aims to put smiles on faces as much as he hopes to preserve the

As a reminder, this city was founded by Scottish settlers in the 1840's and named in honour of the capital of Scotland, Dùn Èideann, Scot-Gaelic for Edinburgh. Among those first settlers was Reverend Thomas Burns, Robbie's nephew, whose descendants still reside here. Addressing the haggis is one way we can protect Dunedin's Scottish heritage, which is exactly the message Robert Burns intended in his most famous poem. -- Krysha Brzuza

Interested in learning bagpipes? Get in touch with a local pipe band. Expert piper, Bill Swift, is available for private tutoring (perhaps in exchange for whisky) 🙂

VALLEY PROJECT AGM 2022

On a rather wintery night last month, Valley Project staff, executive board, partners, and community members cozied up together to discuss the year that's been. The sight of a full house was an encouraging one for all.

In the 2022 Valley Project annual report, it was addressed that for many of us these past twelve months have been harder than the last. Covid and its ramifications have been felt in many different ways throughout all of our lives, in our communities, our homes, and the places we work. The Valley Project has relied heavily on the support of our community, our staff, and our volunteers. We have leaned on our funders and support systems to help us through.

For all supporting parties of past and present, gratitude was plentiful throughout the evening. Starting with staff recognition, much of what the Valley Project has accomplished this past year wouldn't be possible without the drive of the Project's staff and contractors: Kate Vercoe, Krysha Brzuza, Charlotte Wilson, Jess Covell, Clare Cross, Emily Peterson, KJ Davie, Steve O'Connor, and Jess Corbett.

Valley Project volunteers were keenly acknowledged as well, particularly Keri Eastwood for her dedicated work with the Kai Share programme. Among the many volunteers that have put in countless hours are the Project's executive committee members, four of whom have stood down since this AGM: Nathan Laurie, Uschi Heyd, Marama Smyth, and Ian Telfer. We haven't quite lost Nathan as he is taking on a different role as a Project intern while he pursues a Grad Diploma in Event Management. Uschi started out as a very reliable reception volunteer several years ago, and then implemented wellness initiatives as an executive member. She was a grounding spirit for the team. Marama has been a passionate community advocate during her time with the Project. As well as sitting on the executive, she has been a true "hands-on" member; involving herself in community trapping, events, whānau activities, reception mahi, support of community members, and project coordination.

With a total of five years service, Ian Telfer held the role of Chairperson for two years and the last year as treasurer. Ian's contribution has been enormous. His work has been tireless, his guidance steady, and his advice spot on. He has led fundraising and planning for the Project, and been critical in supporting staff. We could not have had a better person in this role. His calm, generous manner and clear and clever intellect will be sorely missed!

A heartfelt thank you was also given to funders for their support of the Valley Project work this year:

Dunedin City Council: Place-Based Funding, City Sanctuary, and Waste Minimisation. Lottery Grants Board Ministry of Business, Innovation & Employment Ministry of Social Development Department of Internal Affairs: COGS, Lottery Environment and Heritage Committee. Otago Museum Lion Foundation Otago Regional Council

And for their very generous donations, we are forever thankful to the following:Baptist ChurchAnd all the others who donated viaValley Community Workshopour Give a Little page

To all, arshanni ki a konton katoa!

This year's AGM included an open discussion around our Valley Voice newsletter. We asked all attendees to share their thoughts on its design, content, sustainability, advertising scheme, format, delivery, and anything else pertinent. The brainstorming session was brief but productive. In addition to this collection of feedback, we invite more of it! Please email your thoughts on the Valley Voice community publication to Kate@northeastvalley.org.

If you're interested in reading the full Valley Project Annual, Financial, and Community reports presented at this year's AGM, head over to our website: www.northeastvalley.org/about/agm. Results from the election of board members will be presented in the next issue of Valley Voice.

As we reflect on the challenges of the last year and also look at what we have achieved and how far we have come, it is a chance to affirm that we stand united as a community, we have each other, and our connections and networks are what make us stronger. Connect with your family, your neighbours, your environment. This is your place. This is our place.

SCHOOL HOLIDAYS INSPIRATION FROM VALLEY TAMARIKI 😅

ERIN, AGE 10

Any memories of past school holidays? Three years ago my grandma came to Dunedin from England. Normally we go skiing if it's winter—Cardrona or Ohau—and if it's summer we go camping and on day trips, sometimes in Naseby and Alexandra. School holiday of your dreams? Spending time with my friends or going clothing shopping with them. I really want to go to Christchurch because lots of my friends are there, because they have fun stuff to do and lots of activities, and because there are shops not in Dunedin.

OSCAR, AGE 7

Any plans in store? These holidays we have cousins coming from Whangarei and I want to take them to walk up Mt Cargill and the Organ Pipes. Do you have any special memories of past school holidays? I like having friends or family come to stay and take them to walk up the steepest street in the world.

HENRY, AGE 6

Do you have any family traditions during the school holidays? We got to Oamaru for one day with my friend Xan and our papas. What do you suggest to do around NEV? Go to the botanic gardens and eat hot chips at the duck pond. Go to Chingford Park and throw rocks in the creek.

HARRY, AGE 6

What does your dream school holiday look like? It's just something you might not have expected: the quarry dairy and get an ice cream - that's my favourite thing to do. What are you hopes for this winter break? Too much computer time. Special memories from past holidays? Not really. I don't really sometimes remember that. What can you do in NEV? Nothing.

WILLIAM, AGE 9

Any suggestions for activities in NEV? Go exploring in the forest at Bethune's Gully. Go to the BMX track. Chingford Park has a good playground - take a ball or frisbee. Have you made any plans? Sort of. One week art. One week parkour. Do you hold any special memories from past holidays? Yes, going skiing in winter holidays, and in summer holidays we went to Picton. The campground had video games. Dream school break? Going to Picton and playing those games. Going on a boat, and then skiing, and a tramp. Lots of walks and biking. How are school holidays handled when parents are working? Mum says: every time is an ad hoc combo of taking kids to work, holiday programs, grandma, and shared childcare with neighbours!

FREIDA, AGE 10

What do you suggest to do around North East Valley? I like going biking at Signal Hill with my whanau. There is a really cool orienteering course at Chingford park that we did once.

FLINT, AGE 7

What are your hopes for this winter break? If it's really snowy, I'd like to make a snowman. And I want to play on Prodigy (that's a computer game). Do you hold any special memories of past holidays? Watching my dad bungy jump and going on the luge in Queenstown. Often we play with our friends at Chingford Park. We like doing gymnastics there. Any traditions? Sometimes we go and visit our friends Niamh and Bertie and Liadan. What's there to do in NEV? Swing as high as you can on the swings at Bethunes gully. Your dream school holiday? Playing Prodigy for five days and then going to Timezone!

MARION, AGE 10

Have you made any plans? Yes, I'm going skiing with my dad and stay in a hut on a ski field. Then me and my mum are going to go up to Auckland. We're still planning out the Auckland trip though. What are your hopes for this winter break? That me and mum will make it to Auckland, and also that I'll learn more about cross country skiing.

LEON, AGE 8

Hopes for winter break? I want to go on a snow trip with Mum and Dad and maybe going snowboarding. Any special memories of past school holidays? We went on a big campervan trip to the West Coast and went to lots of fun places, went swimming in hot pools, kayaking, playing on the beach and staying in cool places.
