

Creating a Vibrant Research Culture

Prof Rachel Spronken-Smith
Higher Education Development Centre

University of Otago
ŌTĀKOU WHAKAIHU WAKA

Aims of this session

- To define the term 'research culture'
- To consider indicators of a vibrant research culture
- To assess how your current research network rates against these indicators
- To raise awareness of how individuals can contribute to and influence a healthy and inclusive research culture

<http://www.theijbm.com/8-most-effective-ways-to-improve-research-culture/>

Outline

- [Introductions]
- Considering research culture
- Indicators of a vibrant research culture
- Assessment of your research culture
- How can individuals contribute to a healthy and inclusive research culture?
- Recap and next steps

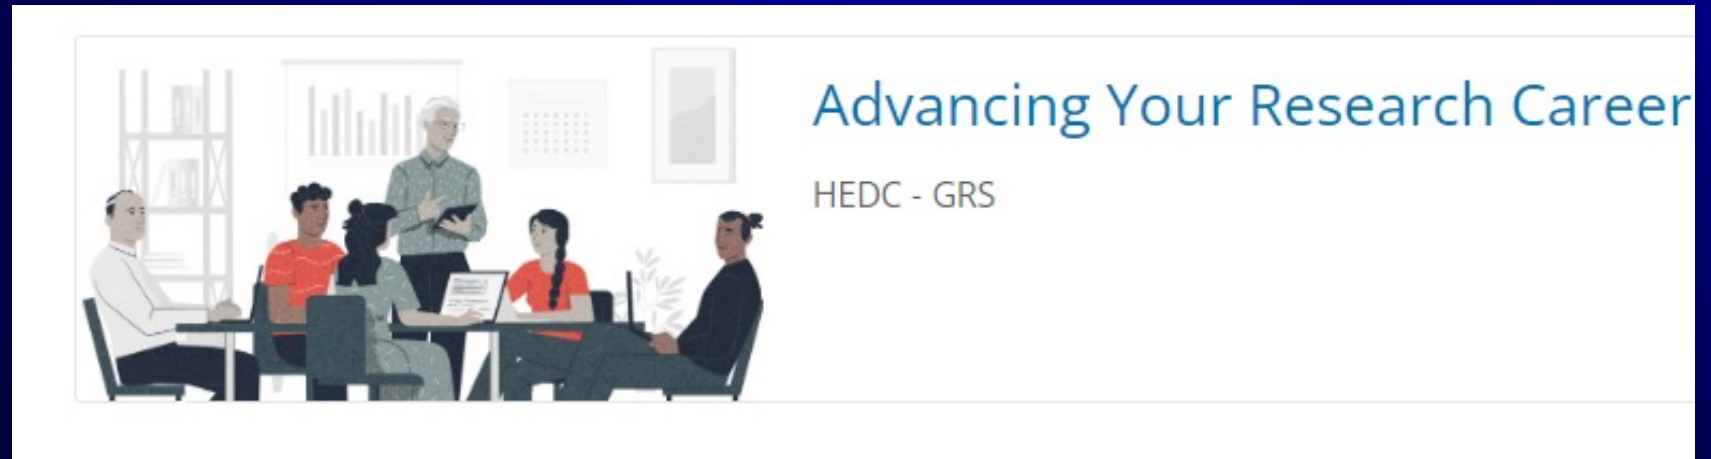

What comes to mind with the phrase 'research culture'

→ Brainstorm at your tables

What comes to mind with the phrase ‘research culture’

- Hearing from others

- In a blog by the UK Royal Society, they define research culture as encompassing “the behaviours, values, expectations, attitudes and norms of our research communities. It influences researchers’ career paths and determines the way that research is conducted and communicated”.

Indicators of a vibrant research culture

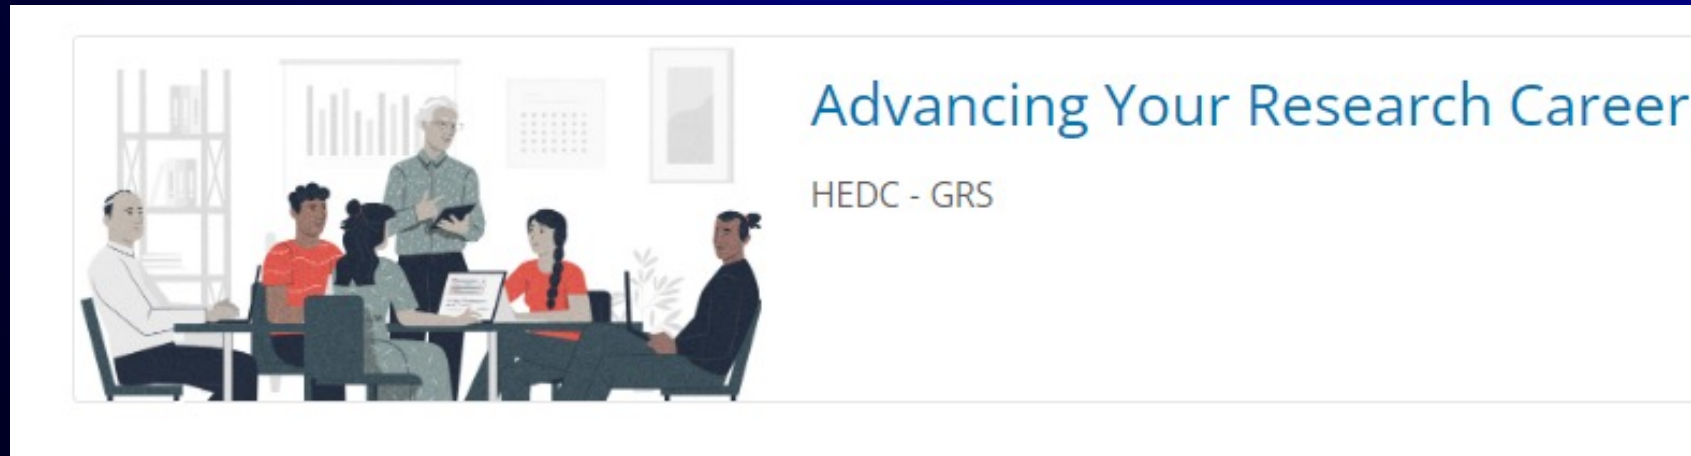

How does your research culture stack up?

Indicator	Rating (1 poor to 5 excellent)

How can individuals contribute to a healthy and inclusive research culture?

Epigeum course 'Advancing your research career'

Recap and next steps

